

Economics and Business Administration for Society

Research for economic, environmental, and social sustainability

ECOBAS (Economics and Business Administration for Society) is an inter-university research centre in the field of economic, environmental, and social sustainability:

Created to seek answers to the major challenges of today's society.

It comprises researchers in social sciences from the three Galician universities.

Aligned with the principles and values of:

- The United Nations (UN) Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).
- The Strategy for Smart Specialisation (RIS3) of Galicia.
- The European Charter for Researchers.
- The principles of Responsible Research and Innovation (RRI).

OBJECTIVES

We work to generate excellent scientific knowledge with a vocation for social utility in order to:

- Exercise scientific leadership in the social sciences and the study of sustainability through differentiation, specialisation, and frontier research.
- Capture and promote scientific talent in the social sciences in Galicia to support the new generation of researchers in the fields of economics and business.
- Promote quality training and establish alliances with international centres of reference.
- Foster the exploitation of research results and knowledge transfer, to both public and private sectors.
- Promote public policies regarding new regulations, tax frameworks, and public services.
- Enhance innovation through cooperation with public, private, and non-governmental organisations.
- Contribute to a responsible exploitation of resources to achieve the sustainable development of businesses and local communities.
